TransLink warns of long waits during Games

Some stations may see delays of up to two hours during busy event times

BY KELLY SINOSKI
VANCOUVER SUN

The unexpectedly long lineups that greeted the opening of Canada Line have TransLink now warning commuters and Olympic visitors to brace for waits of up to two hours at some transit stations next month during the 2010 Games.

But TransLink spokesman Ken Hardie added the Olympic waits would not be at every station and would likely only be during peak periods, such as the morning rush, in the afternoon between 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. when events are happening, and after 11:30 p.m. following the medals ceremonies and the closure of the LiveSites.

Protesters decry parking tax

But TransLink says it is needed to fund new projects.

A screenshot of a Windows Internet Explorer browser displaying the website for the Western Marine Community Coalition. The browser's address bar shows 'http://www.bcmarine.org/'. The website has a dark grey header with the logo 'Western Marine Community Coalition' and a navigation menu with links for Home, About WMC, Committees, Documents, Blog, Web Links, and Contact Us. The main content area features a large image of a container ship at a dock with the heading 'BC Marine Blog - Olympic Updates'. Below this is a paragraph of text and a search bar. To the right, there is a red sidebar with the text 'Blog - Olympic Related Updates Email: blog@bcmarine.org' and a list of bullet points. Below the sidebar is a 'Login' section with fields for Username and Password, a 'Remember me' checkbox, and a 'Login' button. At the bottom of the main content area, there are three columns of smaller images and text: '2010 OLYMPIC & PARALYMPIC GAMES', 'TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT', and 'MARINE OPERATIONS'. The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows several open applications including Microsoft Office Word, PowerPoint, Excel, Internet Explorer, and Windows Explorer, along with the system clock showing 12:31 PM.
