

January 25, 2012

Dear Community Member:

The City of Vancouver is introducing a new speed limit of 30 km/hr for all commercial trucks on Nanaimo and Renfrew streets, north of Broadway. The City is also introducing turn restrictions for port destined container trucks on several streets (outlined below), and will be installing new signage to communicate the new turn restrictions in the coming weeks:

- No right turn at 41st Avenue (eastbound) while travelling northbound on Clark
- No right turn at Broadway (eastbound) while travelling northbound on Clark
- No left turn at Nanaimo (northbound) while travelling eastbound on Broadway
- No left turn at Renfrew (northbound) while travelling eastbound on Broadway

The trucking industry has been notified of these changes, and additional information on the signage will be provided.

In the interim period while the new signage is being installed, and in order to minimize truck traffic in the residential neighbourhood, the current signage used during the Truck Traffic Pilot Program will remain up, and Port Metro Vancouver will continue to monitor Nanaimo Street.

The City of Vancouver and Port Metro Vancouver will continue to work together to determine a long term approach to the movement of drayage container trucks through the City of Vancouver with the common goal of re-opening the Clark Drive entrance upon completion of the South Shore Corridor Project in 2014.

Thank you.

City of Vancouver