

BULK

As the most diversified Port in North America, Port Metro Vancouver facilitates trade with more than 160 world economies and handled 102 million tonnes of cargo in 2009. Bulk cargo accounts for 66% of Port Metro Vancouver's annual throughput.

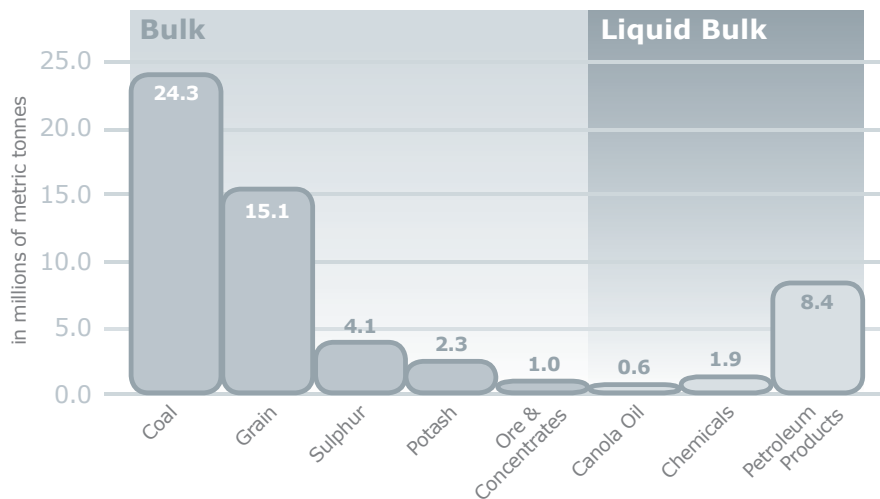

Bulk carriers regularly call on Port Metro Vancouver because of the diversity and availability of western Canadian commodities for export. As a result, the Port has frequent, chartered sailings and a full range of cost-effective maritime and transportation services to support a broad selection of cargo.

Connected to every key market in North America, Port Metro Vancouver has three Class I railways — CN, Canadian Pacific (CP) and Burlington Northern Santa Fe (BNSF) — and offers easy access to an extensive road network.
